

5

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for desalinating water, especially sea water, having a plurality of membrane module units disposed at respective successive stages are disclosed.

Permeated water from a first stage membrane module unit is supplied to a second stage

10 membrane module unit to obtain permeated water. The apparatus contains at least first and second membrane module units at respective successive first and second stages for water permeation.

201508100-012902